

Dragon's Lair

10 - 80+

2 - 3 HRS

INDOOR

This fun and thought provoking package gives participants the opportunity to physically create and market their ideas, before finding out whether the Dragons think it's something worth investing in.

Each team is given a unique selection of props and materials. Participants must work collaboratively, utilising their distinct skills in order to invent, design and build a new prototype for the marketplace. Each team has a budget and must decide how and when to use it, with the option of purchasing additional items from our exotic bazaar. Once their invention has substance, they must then present their prototype before an investment committee.

During the presentation, Dragons will interrogate the teams, ask them to explain how their product works, what the unique selling points are, along with price and expected sales figures. Ultimately the Dragons will decide whether they are in or out!

This activity teaches the value of planning for success, as well as strengthening negotiation skills. As an optional extra, we offer an evening entertainment add on, where the products designed are presented to the Dragons over a themed dinner.
